Ohio Gas Association Features Flynt Group

Kansas City, MO – February 23, 2004 – The Flynt Group, Inc., announced today that the Ohio Gas Association's annual technical conference will feature a presentation by Flynt Group on security issues facing natural gas infrastructure providers. The conference is March 25-26, 2004, in Worthington, Ohio.

The Ohio Gas Association (OGA: www.ohiogasassoc.org) is a major energy organization formed of corporate members, including Cinergy, Dominion Transmission, Columbia Gas of Ohio, El Paso Energy, Ohio Intrastate Gas Transmission Company, Tennessee Gas Pipeline Company, Texas Gas Transmission, and several others.

Flynt Group participation will include addressing the plenary session regarding the strategic risk management challenges facing critical infrastructure corporations.

Commenting on the conference, Bill Flynt, Flynt Group's President and CEO, stated "This is another important opportunity to meet with owners of our country's critical infrastructures, and share with them some of the best practices for managing strategic risk to their employees, assets, business processes, and corporations. Critical infrastructure providers face complex risk challenges, and these discussions help establish the new partnerships companies need to meet those challenges."
