Michigan Society of Professional Engineers' Annual Conference Features Flynt Group in Keynote Address on Professional Engineers' Role in Homeland Security

Kansas City, MO – June 19, 2004 – The Flynt Group, Inc., announced that the Michigan Society of Professional Engineers (MSPE) featured the Flynt Group for their annual conference's keynote address. The conference theme was Homeland Security and examined the role professional engineers will play in the 21st century in protecting critical infrastructures and our communities.

The Michigan Society of Professional Engineers' (<http://www.michiganspe.org>) mission is to promote the ethical, competent, and licensed practice of engineering, and to enhance the professional, social, and economic well-being of its members. MSPE is the only society in Michigan that represents all engineering disciplines, and it has 19 local Chapters throughout the state.

Flynt Group's President, Dr. Bill Flynt, stated "This conference was a very productive exchange and professional dialogue to provide the MSPE with a perspective on where their profession is headed in the field of Homeland Security engineering. The convergence of emerging technologies, the changed security environment in which we all now live, and our society's and economy's dependence on critical infrastructures presents unique design and operational challenges to engineers in all disciplines. This discussion provided a roadmap forward for those engineering firms entering this booming market, and identified the need to strategically partner with others outside of the engineering profession to meet the unique challenges of infrastructure security."
