Business Executives for National Security Retains Flynt Group

Kansas City, MO – March 1, 2005 – The Flynt Group, Inc., announced today that the Washington, DC based organization Business Executives for National Security has retained the Flynt Group to conduct strategic planning and representation for its MidAmerica Business Force initiative.

Business Executives for National Security (BENS) is a nationwide, non-partisan organization of senior executives dedicated to using their experience to promote America's security (<http://www.BENS.org>). The organization's over 500 members include leaders in several of America's largest and best-known corporations, and is led by General Chuck Boyd (US Air Force, Retired, and former Executive Director of the Hart-Rudman Commission).

The mission of the BENS Business Force is to maximize new Homeland Security capabilities at the state and regional level by creating public / private partnerships that neither business nor government can create alone.

“BENS is the premier organization for America's senior corporate leaders to contribute to our national security” stated Flynt Group's President, Dr. Bill Flynt. “It is at the forefront of bringing the private-sector's best business practices to critical national security issues, and we are excited and honored to be a part of the BENS team promoting their Business Force program.”
